

This week was very productive. I fixed the issue with scoring that I was having, added a floor, updated the physics to make it look better, and added a way to curve the ball. My plan now is to add obstacles each round. That should hopefully be fairly simple, and I should have the final game done by Thursday to submit for the conference.